Bath Township Platoon Chiefs Complete Advanced Training

Two Bath Township Fire Department Platoon Chiefs completed training earlier this month at State Fire School at Bowling Green State University in Bowling Green, Ohio.

Platoon Chief Jared Jenkins successfully completed an 60 hour Ohio Fire Instructor Course which covered principles of adult learning, communication, instructional methods, lesson plan development, assessment, NFPA 1403 live fire training practices, and other components of the Ohio Department of Public Safety Instructor Course core curriculum. Jenkins has been with the department since 2006.

Platoon Chief Crystal Plumpe, who joined the department in 2005 attended a week long course called "Incident Command Lab" and learned to make real time decisions during computerized simulations. She participated as a member of the Incident Command Staff and rotated through various staff positions up to and including Incident Commander.
